

RISK INNOVATION
NEXUS

ORGANIZATIONS & SYSTEMS

The risk domain of organizations and systems concerns the orphan risks associated with how businesses operate, and the broader social, economic, and political environment they operate within. It addresses often-overlooked risks associated with internal culture, and tensions between foundational values and organizational practices. It also addresses the sometimes-intangible risks associated with maintaining reputation and trust, and navigating a complex and shifting national and global governance and regulatory ecosystem.

This risk domain has six dimensions where lack of awareness and process can lead to orphan risks: